The library has been open every week during the year, and has been well patronized. Many kind friends have remembered us with books for which we are very thankful. The Washington Bicentennial Committee of Hooksett gave the picture of the Pageant of the "Great American," which adorns the walls of the library, and is very much appreciated. Mr. Fayette Blair gave a very handsome wreath to the library at Christmas. Mr. Morgan has very kindly kept the library warm. The books purchased by the town ap-appropriation were selected by trained librarians. We think they are very good books, and we hope our patrons will enjoy them. During the past year we have lost one of our Trustees, Mr. Samuel Head. Mr. Head was a life long resident of Hooksett. He was interested in everything pertaining to its welfare. He was very much interested in the library and in young people. We were very fortunate in the appointment of Mr. Charles Greenough to fill his place. Mr. Greenough has always lived in Hooksett and has worked for the best interests of the town. We know he will be a help to the library and we are very glad to welcome him to the Board of Trustees.

We take this opportunity to thank all who have, in any way, helped the good work of the library.

Respectfully submitted,

JENNIE B. ABBOTT,

Librarian.

Report of the School Board

We present for the inspection of all tax payers and citizens our annual reports—the expenditures and revenue of the district, also the detailed reports of superintendent, treasurer, nurse and music teacher. We have tried to keep up our schools to the standards required by State Board of Education with the least expenditure of money and have been able to do this only by co-operation of all working with us. The necessary repairs for sanitation were made in all rooms and all school houses are in a good state of repair. We urge parents to visit classes often for only in this way can the work of the child be best known.

We ask for helpful suggestions and are ready at all times to answer questions concerning management or financial condition.

REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

To the School Board and Citizens:

I herewith submit my thirteenth annual report of the schools of Hooksett, for the year ending June 30, 1932.

There were maintained during the year, ten schools, for a school-year of 37 weeks, with no change in the teaching force.

The enrollment of different pupils was 355, with a daily average attendance of 95.76 per cent. The schools were in session on an average of 358 half-days.

Of the ten teachers employed, eight are graduates of normal school, and all have state certificates.

The increasing complexity of modern life has made it necessary for the school to expand its activities to meet effectively the needs of the present, and prepare adequately for a future, the needs of which will inevitably be different.

How the local schools can be economically carried on without crippling necessary service, is being seriously considered by the school authorities.

The world-wide financial depression causing unemployment and an excessive burden of taxation, has aroused the keenest interest in the study of governmental control in all its separate forms.

Several committees have been organized, composed of social experts chosen from the various organizations, to study the "Recent Social Trends" in industry, in family life, in education, and in the field of religion.

One eminent committee was appointed by the President of the United States to study these problems. The chairman was Dr. Wesley C. Mitchell, director of the National Bureau of Economic Research. He was assisted by six noted experts. The Rockefeller Foundation furnished $500,000 to pay the expenses of this investigation, and other organizations and individuals contributed another $500,000.

Assistance was given by many different persons and organizations.

After three years of study the conclusions of the committee are published in two volumes, and there are an additional thirteen volumes containing evidences upon which the conclusions are based.

"The committee does not believe in a moratorium upon education" says the report. "On the contrary, it holds that education has to be stimulated to keep pace with mechanical inventions." The report also declares "that the trend of things indicate the necessity of social control and national planning."

The crisis confronting education in America is so alarming that the President called a conference of representatives of diverse interests to assemble in Washington to consider it.

This conference was made up of representatives of the American Council on Education, the American Farm Bureau, the American Federation of Labor, the National Association of Manufacturers and the National Grange.

The conference was significant because of its membership, deliberations and conclusions. Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, was chairman of the convention. President Hoover opened the conference, and set the tone of discussion by the statement that "our nation faces the acute responsibility of providing a right of way for the American child."

The recommendations, after days of deliberation and discussion, are worthy of our thoughtful study and full consideration.

The conference emphasized the fact that in general the schools have been under-nourished rather than too richly fed. Also that waste, wherever it existed, should be eliminated.

The committee voted to recommend:

"That the major wastes in education should be eliminated through the elimination of control and interference by politicians, of political appointments and of political corruption.

"That local governments, and local school districts should be reorganized and consolidated.

"That state educational administration be reorganized through the creation of a non-political and professional agency for the administration of the educational policies of the state.

"That the state must assume the responsibility of assuring adequate public education to all local communities irrespective of their financial condition.

"That when states are unable to do so, the federal government must assume the responsibility of assuring adequate public education to those states in whatever manner may be required.

"That all governments, local, state and national, must direct attention to the immediate reformation of the system of taxation, since that is basic to any consideration of the financing of education."

Criticism is often made against the large number of subjects taught in our schools. Some of these are called "fads and frills" by those who believe that the old and narrow curriculum was adequate for all pupils.

It is true that the number of school subjects has greatly increased and that the increase has added materially to the cost of education. Whether or not these larger opportunities are justifiable, the school authorities are not responsible for them. For the most part they have resulted from legislation inspired by people who have visioned the need of a broader education and a better preparation for a citizenship in this modern and complex civilization.

Many of the so-called "fads" of yesterday are regarded as fundamentals of today.

The school authorities believe that it is the duty of the school to train the young to do their full duty in life and are endeavoring to devine the needs of future society, and to plan the school work to meet these needs and are anxious to co-operate with parents and citizens for these ends.

Our teachers are paid a comparatively small salary, the repairs on the school buildings are as few as is consistent for health and efficiency, and the cost of books and supplies is kept low. The consolidation of schools, wherever feasible, seems a means of lessening school costs.

The progress of the work done in our schools is commendable.

The regular teachers and the instructors of special activities are faithfully and industriously working under well-planned and accredited lines of procedure.

The conduct of the pupils on the playgrounds is being well supervised for their safety, happiness and health.

The disciplinary troubles, caused almost entirely by the lack of home training and parental government, impede the work of the school and deprive the pupils of a happy school life.

Teachers are peculiarly exposed to criticism and annoyances. The legal right of the teacher, apparently, is so little understood by parents and the general public, that a knowledge of this law may assist in the administration of the affairs of the schools.

We quote some of the legal rights of the teacher as given by eminent authorities.

"The law will sustain a teacher in inflicting corporal punishment provided it is reasonable and for sufficient cause."

"The reasonable assumption is, that in respect of restraint and correction, the teacher 'is in loco parentis' and may exercise that degree of force that would be justifiable in a parent."

This law has existed from the foundation of our public school and has been sustained by the decisions of the courts.

We sincerely urge parents and citizens to visit the schools frequently. Your interest, thus shown, will encourage and inspire the children and teachers. and by these visits you will get a better knowledge of the school work and its management.

We appreciate the large attendance of parents and friends at the public exercises given at Memorial and Christmas time and at the graduation exercises of the eighth grade, but as above stated, visits made during the regular school days will reveal more fully the real work and worth of the school.

In conclusion I express my appreciation for the co-operation and assistance given to me by the teachers, the school board and the citizens.

Respectfully submitted,

HENRY S. ROBERTS,

Superintendent.

MUSIC

"Music appeals to all classes of people and in every phase of daily life plays a larger part than all other arts and forms of recreation combined." If this statement is true, the effort made, and the time spent in the two past years in teaching music in the public schools have not been wasted.

We have followed the regular course—supplemented by ear and eye training, sight reading and music appreciation.

A fine Victrola has been added to the equipment of one school.

Both rural and grade schools have prepared interesting programs for special days. Great credit should be given the graduating class of 1932 for the manner in which they presented the "Pageant of Washington" at graduation, it was of particular interest, because of the evidence of latent talent it brought out.

We thank the friends of the schools who have attended our entertainments, the superintendent and the teachers who have made the music lesson period so vital a part of the daily program.

Respectfully submitted,

KATE L. SMITH.

In addition to the usual health examinations, follow up work and clinics, a considerable amount of time has been given to social welfare work and many homes visited in an attempt to help those needing assistance.

The distribution of food, clothing and medical supplies, which have been received through various agencies, has required much time and travel. In addition, garden seeds and fertilizer have also been received and gardens were planted with the result that many families were able to can vegetables for the winter. Through the Red Cross, the State Unemployment Relief Committee, the churches, different societies, and individuals, it has been possible to aid many needy families.

To all who have assisted me in both the school and the relief work, I wish to express my thanks and appreciation.
